Q4a. And thinking back, if you can, to the general election in May 2015, during which David Cameron was the leader of the Conservatives and Ed Miliband was the leader of the Labour Party, and which resulted in a majority government formed by the Conservatives and headed by Cameron, which party did you actually vote for? Was it the Conservatives, Labour, UKIP, Liberal Democrat, another party, or did you not manage to vote on that occasion?

Q8. Continue to imagine the current situation is that the UK Government has agreed a final Brexit deal with the EU and that the UK Parliament has voted on the deal.

Some people argue that there should be a 'People's Vote' on the Government's final Brexit deal following the deal passing through Parliament.

This would give voters the opportunity to accept or reject the deal. Now please consider the following two scenarios and, all other things being equal, tell us which party you would vote for in a general election held at this time if...

Scenario One: In the parliamentary vote, the Labour Party, including your local MP, the Liberal Democrats, and Plaid Cymru decided to support the Government's final Brexit deal, on the condition that there is a People's Vote on the deal and that the deal is then approved by the public in this People's Vote.

Some people argue that there should be a 'People's Vote' on the Government's final Brexit deal following the deal passing through Parliament.

Scenario One: In the parliamentary vote, the Labour Party, including your local MP, the Liberal Democrats, and Plaid Cymru decided to support the Government's final Brexit deal, on the condition that there is a People's Vote on the deal and that the deal is then approved by the public in this People's Vote.
